USA: Core Wireless Licensing S.A.R.L. v. Apple Inc, United States Court of Appeals, Federal Circuit, No. 2015-2037, 14 April 2017

Peter Reap (Wolters Kluwer Legal & Regulatory US) · Thursday, April 20th, 2017

The federal district court in Tyler, Texas, correctly denied Core Wireless Licensing S.A.R.L.’s (“Core Wireless’s”) motion for judgment as a matter of law that Apple infringed a claim of a Core Wireless patent directed to a means for sending packet data from a mobile station such as a cellular telephone to a cellular system or network, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit has ruled. Core Wireless’s main argument on appeal, that the patent does not require the mobile station to make the channel selection decision, was without merit (Core Wireless Licensing S.A.R.L. v. Apple Inc., April 14, 2017, Bryson. W.).
