

Cyprus: C. Ataliotis Niche Advertising Ltd -vs- Antonis Andreou, Supreme Court of Cyprus, 365/2014, 28 March 2016

Kluwer Patent Blog

February 1, 2018

Christos Theodoulou (Theodoulou)

Please refer to this post as: Christos Theodoulou, 'Cyprus: C. Ataliotis Niche Advertising Ltd -vs- Antonis Andreou, Supreme Court of Cyprus, 365/2014, 28 March 2016', Kluwer Patent Blog, February 1 2018, <http://patentblog.kluweriplaw.com/2018/02/01/cyprus-c-ataliotis-niche-advertising-ltd-vs-antonis-andreou-supreme-court-cyprus-3652014-28-march-2016/>

The Supreme Court upheld the decision of the First Instance Court that the defendant had been using oval-shaped signs that fell within the scope of the patent since 2008, without the consent of the plaintiff. No defence was invoked during the proceedings, hence the defendant had infringed the plaintiff's specific patent right.

A full summary of this case has been published on Kluwer IP Law.