

Patent case: Virgin Atlantic Airways Ltd v Zodiac Seats UK Ltd, United Kingdom

Kluwer Patent Blog
June 30, 2018

Sara Moran

Please refer to this post as: Sara Moran, 'Patent case: Virgin Atlantic Airways Ltd v Zodiac Seats UK Ltd, United Kingdom', Kluwer Patent Blog, June 30 2018, <http://patentblog.kluweriplaw.com/2018/06/30/united-kingdom-virgin-atlantic-airways-ltd-v-zodiac-seats-uk-ltd-supreme-court-united-kingdom-2013-uksc-46-03-july-2013/>

The Supreme Court held that where judgment is given in an English court that a patent (English or European) is valid and infringed, and the patent is subsequently retrospectively revoked or amended (whether in England or at the EPO), the defendant is entitled to rely on the revocation or amendment on the enquiry as to damages.

Case date: 03 July 2013

Case number: [2013] UKSC 46

Court: Supreme Court of the United Kingdom

A full summary of this case has been published on Kluwer IP Law.