

Paris offices Unified Patent Court on Quai de la Mégisserie

Kluwer Patent Blog
May 22, 2019

Kluwer Patent blogger

Please refer to this post as: Kluwer Patent blogger, 'Paris offices Unified Patent Court on Quai de la Mégisserie', Kluwer Patent Blog, May 22 2019, <http://patentblog.kluweriplaw.com/2019/05/22/paris-offices-unified-patent-court-on-quai-de-la-megisserie/>

The Paris offices of the future Unified Patent Court have been disclosed.

The Paris location for the UPC was announced recently, and according to the French Patent & Trademark Attorneys Company CNCPi, the first visit of the offices was organized by the Justice Ministry last Monday.

'Located at the Quai de la Mégisserie, these offices are located in the heart of Paris, on the banks of the Seine and in the immediate vicinity of the Ile de la Cité and the historic buildings of the Palais de Justice. These offices are fully functional and easily accessible by public transport', the CNCPi reported. The UPC Preparatory Committee will update the website with locations soon.

Paris is important in the future Unitary Patent system. It will be the location of a local division and a branch of the central division of the Unified Patent Court. Moreover, the first president of the court of first instance (comprising the central, regional and local UPC divisions) will be a French national, who will probably be at the Paris offices regularly.

The latest development shows preparations are going on despite the uncertainty about the future of the UP system due to the German constitutional complaint which was filed against the UPCA in 2017. A decision of the Federal Constitutional Court in Germany is expected later this year. The Brexit has been another source of concern for supporters of the UP; although the UK government intends to keep the UK in the Unitary Patent system post-Brexit, observers have questioned whether this is legally possible.